The number of students in supervised clinical experience during this academic year includes teacher education candidates who are counted multiple times because of multiple field experiences tied to multiple courses required for multiple endorsements in an academic year.

Enrollment

THIS PAGE INCLUDES:

>> Enrollment

On this page, enter the number of candidates for an initial teaching credential who are enrolled in the initial teacher preparation programs within your institution of higher education (IHE) or organization. Do not report on the total number of students enrolled in the entire IHE. Do not include individuals who currently hold a teaching credential and are seeking additional licenses or endorsements, or individuals preparing for school-based careers other than classroom teachers (e.g., administrators, guidance counselors).

The Department recognizes that in many cases, candidates voluntarily report their race/ethnicity and gender data, and that in some cases, candidates may choose not to report this information. Please report on the race/ethnicity data you have available, though the data may not be complete. It is not expected that the sum of the enrolled students reported by race/ethnicity or by gender will necessarily equal the total number of students enrolled.

If your IHE offers both traditional and alternative programs, be sure to enter the candidates enrolled in the appropriate reports. For the traditional report, provide only the candidates enrolled in traditional programs within the IHE. For the alternative report, provide only the candidates enrolled in the alternative programs within the IHE.

After entering the enrollment data, save the page using the floating save box at the bottom of the page.

Enrollment

For the purpose of Title II reporting, an enrolled student is defined as a student who has been admitted to a teacher preparation program, but who has not completed the program during the academic year being reported. An individual who completed the program during the academic year being reported is counted as a program completer and not an enrolled student.

| Unduplicated number of females enrolled in 2017-18 | <input type="text" value="102"/> |

Provide the number of students in the teacher preparation program in the following categories. Note that you must report on the number of students by ethnicity and race separately. Individuals who are non-Hispanic/Latino will be reported in one of the race categories. Also note that individuals can belong to one or more racial groups, so the sum of the members of each racial category may not necessarily add up to the total number of students enrolled. ## Teachers Prepared

On this page, enter the number of program completers by the subject area in which they were prepared to teach, and by their academic majors. Note that an individual can be counted in more than one academic major and subject area. For example, if an individual is prepared to teach Elementary Education and Mathematics, that individual should be counted in both subject areas. If no individuals were prepared in a particular academic major or subject area, you may leave the cell blank. Please use the "Other" category sparingly, if there is no similar subject area or academic major listed. In these cases, you should use the text box to describe the subject area(s) and/or the academic major(s) counted in the "Other" category.

If your IHE offers both traditional and alternative programs, be sure to enter the program completers in the appropriate reports. For the traditional report, provide only the program completers in traditional programs within the IHE. For the alternative report, provide only the program completers for the alternative programs within the IHE.

After entering the teachers prepared data, save the page using the floating save box at the bottom of the page.

Teachers Prepared by Academic Major

Please provide the number of teachers prepared by academic major for academic year 2017-18. For the purposes of this section, number prepared means the number of program completers. "Academic major" refers to the actual major(s) declared by the program completer. An individual can be counted in more than one academic major. If no individuals were prepared in a particular academic major, please leave that cell blank. (§205\(b\)\(1\)\(H\))

Please note that the list of majors includes several "Teacher Education" majors, as well as several noneducation majors. Please use care in entering your majors to ensure education-specific majors and non-education majors are counted correctly. For example, if an individual majored in Chemistry, that individual should be counted in the "Chemistry" academic major category rather than the "Teacher Education–Chemistry" category.

Program Completers

On this page, enter the total number of individuals who completed the program in AY 2017-18 and the two prior academic years. If you submitted an IPRC last year, the number of program completers for the two prior academic years are pre-loaded from your prior year's report.

A program completer is a person who has met all the requirements of a state-approved teacher preparation program. Program completers include all those who are documented as having met such requirements. Documentation may take the form of a degree, institutional certificate, program credential, transcript or other written proof of having met the program's requirements. In applying this definition, the fact that an individual has or has not been recommended to the state for initial certification or licensure may not be used as a criterion for determining who is a program completer.

An individual cannot be classified as both enrolled and as a program completer at the same time. An enrolled individual is not a program completer. Once an individual has met all the requirements of a state-approved teacher preparation program and becomes a program completer, the individual is no longer classified as enrolled.

After entering the program completers, save the page using the floating save box at the bottom of the page.

Annual Goals - Mathematics

Each institution of higher education (IHE) that conducts a traditional teacher preparation program (including programs that offer any ongoing professional development programs) or alternative route to state credential program, and that enrolls students receiving Federal assistance under this Act, shall set annual quantifiable goals for increasing the number of prospective teachers trained in teacher shortage areas designated by the Secretary or by the state educational agency, including mathematics, science, special education, and instruction of limited English proficient students. (§205\(a\)\(1\)\(A\)\(ii\), §206\(a\))

4. Description of strategies used to achieve goal, if applicable:

Gonzaga as a whole recruits students to the university. Many students enter the university knowing they are interested in becoming a Special Education teacher. Some students take the introductory courses to see if they might be interested in Special Education. In these courses, is where we seek students who find the field a good match.

5. Description of steps to improve performance in meeting goal or lessons learned in meeting goal, if applicable:

The state of Washington should reconsider the new requirement of an additional endorsement for Special Education teachers. At minimum, the English Language Learner endorsement and Early Childhood Special education endorsement should count as an additional endorsement area if Special Education is required to have multiple endorsements.

6. Provide any additional comments, exceptions and explanations below:

Due to the change in the certification requirements for Special Education to have an additional endorsement in Washington state, a portion of Special Education majors are no longer seeking certification. Easing this requirement would increase the numbers of Special Education teachers in the field.

Our responses, thus are for the former, and all student counts refer to the number of students enrolled in English Language Learner endorsement coursework, whether or not they eventually got their English Language Learner endorsements.

8. Describe your institution's most successful strategies in meeting the assurances listed above:

The institution meets these specific assurances by including formal coursework for candidates, the establishment of advisory boards with classroom teacher and administrator representation from our local school districts, service learning components attached to entry level candidate courses and required field experiences in low socioeconomic status educational environments. The establishment of a teacher education advisory board provides invaluable feedback and connectivity to the field. Input from board stakeholders identifies the current needs and initiatives impacting the schools where our candidates do their field experiences and seek employment. These advisory boards are also part of our assessment system and analyze the results of collected data on candidates to provide input for program validity or change. All pre-service teacher candidates are required to do coursework specifically addressing the needs of special population students. This experience covers the federally mandated laws, history, origins, disability definitions and limitations, and the accommodations needed to appropriately serve these students. Candidates receive instruction on supporting language acquisition and content learning of English Language Learners (ELLs) through culturally responsive pedagogical approaches, including sheltered instruction models such as SIOP and Guided Language Acquisition Design (GLAD). Teacher candidates work with ELLs in their field placements and become familiar with school-based support programs. Fundamentals of second language acquisition are taught in literacy courses and teacher candidates have a hands-on experience with language learning in the Learning Theories course. Special education candidates are required to complete a strong university core of courses in the arts and sciences and courses in the regular teacher education curriculum as well as in their special education major. The institution has a strong dedication to service learning and this mission has been connected to entry level teacher education courses via assignments. These classroom assignments allow candidates to experience interactions with at-risk, high needs student populations. In addition, our field placement office has developed a system of tracking and placing candidates in low SES schools as a requirement of their field experience component in the teacher education program. These strategies have been the most successful in assuring candidate exposure to these issues.

Use of Technology

1. Provide the following information about the use of technology in your teacher preparation program. Please note that choosing 'yes' indicates that your teacher preparation program would be able to provide evidence upon request. (§205\(a\)\(1\)\(F\))

Does your program prepare teachers to:

- a. integrate technology effectively into curricula and instruction

Yes
 No

- b. use technology effectively to collect data to improve teaching and learning

2. Provide a description of the evidence that your program uses to show that it prepares teachers to integrate technology effectively into curricula and instruction, and to use technology effectively to collect, manage, and analyze data in order to improve teaching and learning for the purpose of increasing student academic achievement. Include a description of the evidence your program uses to show that it prepares teachers to use the principles of universal design for learning, as applicable. Include planning activities and a timeline if any of the four elements listed above are not currently in place.

Candidates in the pre-service teacher education program demonstrate an understanding of using digital tools for productivity, presentation and communication. Candidates develop understanding and skills that enable them to design instruction that incorporates the use of digital tools to engage and support diverse learners. The faculty in their courses model and promote the effective use of technology for learning. The Physical Education majors are required to complete a course titled Pedagogical Principles of Health, Fitness, and Physical Education which addresses the use of technology as it pertains to their discipline of study. In addition, throughout the program, candidates use pedometers, skin calipers, heart rate monitors, and software designed to measure fitness levels among students. Teacher candidates must demonstrate their proficiency by collecting and analyzing student data with these instruments. Special Education candidates also receive specific training in technology use as it addresses their knowledge of single-subject design and instructional protocols as well as the software addressing such designs and strategies. Technologically aided analysis of single student data for the purpose of assessing and changing teaching strategies and accommodations is part of their emphasis of data driven decision making in the classroom and promotes candidate research involvement. At the undergraduate and graduate levels, teacher candidates take a course in which they are expected to use technology in order to analyze student learning. Specifically, candidates are expected to provide graphics (table or chart) to summarize student learning and student voice as well as student work samples that are usually scanned and submitted in pdf format. Candidates use the data and work sample evidence to analyze instruction, look for gaps in achievement, and inform next steps in teaching and learning to best serve students. Technology is routinely integrated across our curriculum and throughout our programs to enhance and support the learning process. Technology supports active engagement, participation, feedback, and helping connect to the real-world. There are myriad resources that are accessed online, such as web quest, google docs and forms, and Web-based applications for presentation/demonstration, such as Live Binder and Glogster and research based websites that provide current learning material for diverse learners. Candidates have access to a classroom set of iPads for classroom/instructor use. In addition, video technology is used to record live-time teaching (VOSAIC) that allows comments during an observed teaching episode. Gonzaga's School of Education is always seeking ways to discover new uses for technology to collect, manage and analyze data. A database is maintained where data are entered each semester and annually reviewed and analyzed. These data include key and major assessment information. Annual studies are conducted to determine the reliability and viability of one key assessment from each program every year. As a School of Education we use the Global Assessment System, which is a school warehouse with a rich storage of information, data and resources. In addition, Gonzaga's School of Education has purchased Watermark (formerly LIVETEXT), a platform that streamlines data and analytics allowing for the aggregation of evidence from rubrics that shows learners who are meeting particular learning outcomes.

On this page, review the questions about how your program trains general education teachers and special education teachers. For the purposes of these questions, general education teachers means those who are not specifically prepared as special education teachers. ## Teacher Training

Provide the following information about your teacher preparation program. Please note that choosing 'yes' indicates that your teacher preparation program would be able to provide evidence upon request. (§205\(a\)\(1\)\(G\))

1. Does your program prepare general education teachers to:

a. teach students with disabilities effectively

- Yes
 No

b. participate as a member of individualized education program teams

- Yes
 No

c. teach students who are limited English proficient effectively

- Yes
 No

2. Provide a description of the evidence your program uses to show that it prepares general education teachers to teach students with disabilities effectively, including training related to participation as a member of individualized education program teams, as defined in section 614(d)(1)(B) of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, and to effectively teach students who are limited English proficient. Include planning activities and a timeline if any of the three elements listed above are not currently in place.

All pre-service candidates must take courses in which the effective teaching of students with disabilities is the focus. Central to their preparation in this area are strategies for identifying, accommodating, and instructing students with disabilities. Included in this content is information on IEP and 504 plans and the role and responsibilities that a classroom teacher has in the development and delivery of these team constructed plans. Physical Education (Health and Fitness endorsement) candidates take a course specifically addressing the needs of the disabled in movement environments. Candidates work directly with disabled students to observe, practice, and reflect on the "best practice" for each case encountered. Special Education candidates are highly prepared in the strategies and practice of content-based strategies, assessment, managing behavior, plus the development, implementation, and response to intervention necessary as member of an Individualized Education Plan (IEP) team. A pre-service teacher education course (EDTE 201) is team taught with a faculty member from the MA-TESL (Teaching English as a Second Language) program to address teaching of limited language learners. The program added a tenure-track faculty member with expertise in ELL/Literacy. A course has been redesigned to increase substantially candidate knowledge and experience to effectively teach students who are limited in English proficiency. Candidates learn how to select and teach key vocabulary, make instruction accessible to linguistically diverse students, and practice making ELL adaptations to lesson plans. In addition to the course, candidates work one-on-one with ELL students. They also receive instruction related to working with culturally and linguistically diverse parents and families. Gonzaga University School of Education also has begun a targeted ELL field placement for a subset of candidates in their second field experience.

3. Does your program prepare special education teachers to:

a. teach students with disabilities effectively

- Yes
- No
- Program does not prepare special education teachers

b. participate as a member of individualized education program teams

- Yes
- No
- Program does not prepare special education teachers

c. teach students who are limited English proficient effectively

- Yes
- No
- Program does not prepare special education teachers

4. Provide a description of the evidence your program uses to show that it prepares special education teachers to teach students with disabilities effectively, including training related to participation as a member of individualized education program teams, as defined in section 614(d)(1)(B) of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, and to effectively teach students who are limited English proficient. Include planning activities and a timeline if any of the three elements listed above are not currently in place.

Special Education candidates receive explicit and significant training regarding instruction for students with special needs. Multiple courses and field experiences are designed to provide a variety of content information on disability definitions, limitations, assessment, behavior management, and accommodations. Candidates receive training regarding the referral process, screening, completing assessments that are formal and informal, and the laws that are specific to the special education environment, including the development of IEPs. Special Education candidates study IEP development, implementation, response to intervention, and how to function as a member of an IEP team. Candidates write IEPs that include present levels of performance, areas of need, goals, and objectives. These skills are then practiced in the field during in-school placements and student teaching. Field based experiences allow candidates the opportunity to apply strategies learned and connect closely with the reality of the profession. Content information and experiences related to the teaching of English language learners (ELL) are delivered through coursework. There is a faculty member with expertise in this area who teaches the candidates on how to effectively teach students who are limited in English proficiency.

Please use this space to provide any additional information that describes your teacher preparation program(s). You may also attach information to this report card (see below). The U.S. Department of Education is especially interested in any evaluation plans or interim or final reports that may be available.

The pre-service teacher preparation program, as part of the School of Education, was reviewed by The National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE) (March 2011) and the Washington Professional Educator Standards Board (PESB) for re-accreditation and program approval. Reports on the initial Institutional Reports are available on the NCATE AIMS website and the PESB website. All standards were successfully met and the unit and its programs were accredited and approved. Please note, the number of students reported as enrolled in Gonzaga University's Teacher Education Program is lower than the actual number of students who are taking teacher education courses, including Supervised Clinical Experiences. The number of teacher candidates admitted to program is low due to the timing of when they can formally apply for admittance to the certification program. The candidates must complete 12 credits of Teacher Education coursework, have a minimum score on the Basic Skills Assessment, and have successfully completed one field experience in order to be admitted to program. All of these requirements are often not met until late in a teacher candidate's program, at which point he/she is nearing student teaching and counted as completing the program. In previous Title II reports, data reflected all individual candidates enrolled in teacher education courses, including those who were not formally admitted to program.
